Three-Fold Purpose

2222412

This record has a three-fold purpose in its publication.

First of all, we have no ordinary family. Through the one hundred and fifty years we have had a pride for standards of character and religion we do not want lowered.

In the second place, the growing legislation in social security does now demand exactness in dates of birth and facts as to nationality. This also applies to government employment and with the coming years these things will demand strict regulation.

The old family Bible records are not acceptable and they are not kept as of old, and are often destroyed or mutilated by use and age.

Then in the third place, we want to know our family and keep up the close family ties that have always characterized us.

There are nearly one hundred and fifty families, hence it has been no small task and I have had to depend on others for dates and names.

We are indebted to Cousin Nora Smith for our early history. I took the liberty to insert the Carlton connection in Texas in her outline of that side of the family.

A copy will be furnished the Archives of History in Alabama and those of other states may do the same.

With love for all,

R. C. WILLIAMS.

THE KIDD-CARLTON FAMILY

LAST year, when I refused the leadership of the committee appointed to collect data regarding the Kidd Family, little did I think that finally this work would fall on me. I was willing to help and did what I could to interest our relatives in the organization of our family connections, conversing with some and writing to others, to several three or four times. I offered to aid in this difficult undertaking by writing down the little I knew regarding our ancestors. Less than a week ago, I learned that no other effort was being made in this historical write-up.

PERHAPS this is a task that devolves on the older ones of our generation and, it may be, that I am the one best fitted for the undertaking, since our family being isolated in a foreign land, my parents naturally thought much of those in their far-away home, and rehearsed incidents that had taken place in the family life of their parents, brothers and sisters, and others, portraying to our infantile minds indelible impressions of the noble characteristics of our ancestors. We were led to feel that association with grandparents, uncles, aunts, and cousins would be one of the most delightful privileges; and so did it prove, when, some years later, we returned from Brazil to the U. S. A.

SWEET are my recollections of the informal and frequent visits to Aunt Nannie and Uncle D., Aunt Lucy and Uncle Fletcher, Aunt Susie and Uncle Joel, and less frequent ones, because of the distance, but equally delightful, those to Aunt Rissie, who always seemed to be in the spirit of prayer; and my lengthy sojourns in the homes of Aunt Mattie and Cousins Leura and Lon, these homes seeming like my own. I cannot forget those visits to the humble dwelling of Cousin Melissa, and Aunt Tabbie Calhoun, where poverty reigned but everything was clean and inviting, and the simple fare well prepared and appetizing. Some years later I had the pleasure of a lengthy visit in the Texas home of Aunt Sallie Kidd and Uncle Robert Fair, a home of culture and Christian influence, where I found the same big-hearted hospitality and good cheer as in the homes mentioned above. I could give many lovely pictures of family life in all these homes, especially where there were children and young people—these, with the elderly ones, all enjoying each other's companionship and conversation. Today, looking back, I wonder if those visits were not often an imposition. If so, no indication of the fact was ever given; on the contrary, a warm welcome was always extended.

AS TO the history of the Kidd family, so far as I can learn, there is very little authentic data. They were of Scotch-Irish descent. Cousin Melissa Calhoun, Grandpa Kidd's niece, told me that they moved from South Carolina to Fulton County, Georgia, settling on a portion of land now covered by the great city of Atlanta. At that time there was only one store at the crossing of two roads, now Peachtree and South Peachtree Streets. Before they left for Alabama, a town had sprung up.

GRANDPA had one brother and four sisters. Mother, in her last days, said she thought his brother's name was James, but she was not sure. I had the impression that Uncle Willie Kidd was named for that uncle. This uncle married and went to Texas, where he and his wife opened a school and taught for some years. Mother was positive in her assertion that their school was the beginning of the Kidd-Key College, Sherman, Texas. This was her statement in her younger days as well as in her advanced years.

HIS SISTERS were Mary (Aunt Polly), who married a Mr. Rled (or Reed); Elizabeth (Aunt Betsie), who married William Spencer; Martha (Aunt Patsie), who married to a Mr. Stewart; and Sarah (Aunt Sallie), whose husband was Isaac Calhoun. I have been unable to learn anything regarding Aunt Pollie, after her marriage. Aunt Betsie and Mr. Spencer had one daughter, named Sarah. She married a Mr. Timmerman. To them were born two sons, one now living in Prattville, and the other in Mobile, so I am informed. Cousin Sarah had a tragic death. While burning some trash, the flames fanned by the wind, caught her clothing and she was burned to death. Aunt Patsie married a Mr. Stewart. They settled near, or in what is now Birmingham, Ala. They had one daughter, Mariah; greatly loved by her Uncle Seaborn Kidd's girls. She and Aunt Nannie were intimate chums, I think. Cousin Mariah married a Mr. Ray. They had no children of their own. An adopted daughter and her husband live in or near Oxmoor, Ala. Aunt Sallie married Isaac Calhoun. To them was born one child, a girl, whom they named Melissa. Aunt Sallie died in early life, leaving her little girl to the tender care of Aunt Tabbie, Uncle Isaac's maiden sister. In later years, Aunt Mattie Hightower furnished them a small house near her own, so she could more conveniently assist in caring for Uncle Isaac and Aunt Tabbie. After the death of Aunt Mattie Hightower, Cousin Melissa left the little home, living first with Aunt Mattie and Cousin Jimmie, then with Aunt Nannie and L. M. Whetstone, where she passed away the last of 1913.

THE Carltons, Grandma's people, came from Virginia, moving to Georgia shortly after Grandma Kidd's birth. They settled in Troup County, said to have been occupied only by the gentry and their slaves. How and when Grandpa and Grandma Kidd became acquainted, we do not know, neither do we know anything regarding their courtship and marriage, except that they were married in the Carlton home, Troup County. But we know that in December, 1834 they moved from Georgia to Alabama, their eldest child, Nancy Barton, being six months old. They located about a quarter of a mile south of Wetumpka, up on a hill, where today there is a small white house.

GRANDMA Mary Carlton Kidd's father, Archbald, with his family, left Georgia and came to Wetumpka, presumable, about the same time, and located on what is known as the Carlton Place. Her parents were Archibald and Nancy Barton Carlton. Her step-mother was Martha Hutson. She had four brothers, Emory, Horace, Templeton and Richard, and two sisters, Elizabeth and Lucy. She also had six half brothers, Archibald, John, Roland, James, Seaborn and Albert, and one half sister, Susan.

UNCLE Emory had two daughters, Fannie and Emily. Fannie married Dent Brassell. At the close of the Civil War, they, with their infant son, Richard, their only child, embarked with other Southerners for Brazil, but they were not pleased with the outlook, so after one year they returned to the old home near Ware, Elmore County. Here, shortly afterwards, Cousin Emily died. Mr. Braswell then married Aunt Emily. They had two children, Fannie and Dent. Both Mr. and Mrs. Braswell died years ago. Fannie married Mr. Speaking, who died in 1929. She now lives at Shorters Station, Macon County., Alabama. Dent Braswell married Miss Glennie Dozier. They now live near the old home.

UNCLES Emory and Horace died in early manhood. Uncle Richard and Uncle John went to Texas and reared large families. All of the latter have passed away and about half of Uncle Richard's also. The survivors are substantial citizens near Jacksonville, Texas.

The following data of J. T. Carlton was furnished by Ida Carlton Wilson and R. W. Ellison.

JOHN T. Carlton was born in LaGrange, Ga., June 20, 1832, and died Aug. 26, 1910, at Baileyville, Texas, Milan County. His parents moved to Wetumpka, Ala., while he was rather young. It was there he married Miss Mollie Pylout. To this union was born two boys and one girl. One of the boys died in infancy, the other, Charlie, and Mattie came to Texas with their parents in 1865. His wife died soon after their arrival in Divalla, Tex.

Several years later he married Harriet McKinney, daughter of Joseph McKinney and Martha Bozeman McKinney, also natives of Wetumpka, Ala. To this union was born five children: Mary, Lula, Sudie, Johnny and Kinney. Mary, Lola and Johnny died while still children. Harriet McKinney Carlton died at Baileyville, Tex., in 1883.

John T. Carlton married again in 1890 to Miss Anna Dauklin, who survives him.

He enlisted in the 36th Alabama Regiment, under Capt. Mithell and belonged to the Tennessee Army under General Bagg and J. E. Johnson. He was captain of a pioneer company but ranked as Lieutenant. He was in the first battle of Shiloh. Afterwards he was in the following battles: Perryville, Murfreesboro, Missionary Ridge, Chickamauga, and others, even to Atlanta, Ga. He accompanied General Hood in his tour of Tennessee. He built a large raft that was sent down Chickamauga Creek and the Tennessee River which broke the enemy's pontoon bridge at Chattanooga. At one time by an ingenious stroke he saved his army from peril, which showed a military genius worthy of a first class general.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT BY REV. B. T. GOODWIN

And such was the choice made by our dearly beloved Uncle Johnnie (J. T.) Carlton, who passed from the toils, pains of this world into the joy and peace, rest and real liberty that awaits the children of God. He had lived to a ripe old age of seventy-nine years, the greater part of which was spent in the service of God, for when a young man he gave his heart to Jesus, and his life to His service, as is well known by all who knew him.

He was not what some would call a long-faced Christian, but was jovial and happy, and sought to make all about him happy. He loved God, Christ and righteousness, and it was one of the greatest pleasures of his life to engage in the work for the salvation of the lost about him and was always bold, yet in an humble way to testify for his Savior, and to tell what Christ had done for him. And it was one September night in the year 1894, in the church at Rosebud, as he stood before the people gathered for worship, with the light of heaven on his face, and the love of Christ in every word, that this writer who had so long been grappling in darkness, saw the light and surrendered his soul to Christ for life eternal. It is not necessary for me to say I loved Bro. Carlton, and whatever good I may do in life, be it little or much to honor God, and help humanity, this dear brother will have a part of it to his credit when the great day of rewarding shall come; and of this I am truly glad.

I did not wait until his death to speak of this, for more than once when we were alone I have told him how he helped me to Christ and he has embraced me in his arms as a father would a son, and with tear-filled eyes would praise God aloud. He was to me as no other living person, because he lead me to see the light and accept Christ. Not only myself but many others were brought to the fold of God by him, and eternity alone will reveal his mighty works. It was my happy privilege to visit him in his home not long before his death, and have him tell me how he knew that at best the time here could not be long, but that everything was so bright and he was ready at any moment.

If God were to speak to us in an audible voice, of Bro. Carlton He would say, Carlton My Servant Is Dead; and would no doubt say to those who weep for him: Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints, and again Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from hence forth: yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them.

Eloise died in Kerrville, Texas, March 12, 1907. Mary Cliff married Charles Daniel Herren. Their home is in Tallassee, Alabama. Rev. Mark Holt died in Marion, Ala., January 4, 1924. Many, perhaps the majority of the Carlton family and their descendants, for many years, have lived in Wetumpka or in what is now Elmore County. Among them have always been men and women active in all civic, educational and religious movements.

WE RESUME the history of the Kidds. We left the young couple with their first born in Wetumpka, whither they had moved in 1834. In 1840 they moved to Good Hope. Grandpa was a farmer and a mechanic. For some years his custom was to obtain land grants from the government, build on each a house and make other improvements, and sell, moving on to another locality, and improving in the same way. So after a sojourn of six years, near Wetumpka, he sold out and moved to Good Hope, where he established at different times, several homesteads. One of these homes is the Timmermon place. Finally he moved to this community, now known as Eclectic, and settled what must have been the Lemuel Jackson home. Disposing of that he bought a large tract of land east and south of Eclectic. This purchase included Mr. C. D. Hardin's place (and I don't know how much more in that direction); and out east, the old home of Aunt Mattie and Cousin Jimmie Hightower, those of Cousin John A. Whetstone, Messrs. Fuller, Ben Johnson, and, I think, all the land that belonged to the Whetstone estate. He built the first house occupied by Dr. Fielder and family and lived there some years. But his heart was too big and generous for his own good. A friend became involved financially, and he went security for him, thus losing a considerable portion of his possessions. I am not prepared to say whether or not this loss caused him to build another house, a few of the old logs of which—the northern end—still stand as a part of the negro cabin on Cousin Evie Whetstone's place. My parents were married February 14, 1861, in the Fielder house, and I was born August 25, 1862, in the house, a part of which is to be seen today in the negro cabin referred to above. So Grandpa moved from the former to the latter sometime between these two dates, where he lived the remainder of his days, passing away August 31, 1858.

DURING the Civil War, Grandpa sold more land, perhaps the most of what he then owned, receiving in payment Confederate bills, which, at the close of the war, were worth as much as an equal quantity of waste paper. This loss, with that sustained in helping his friend, made him a poor man, the financial heritage he bequeathed to his children and grandchildren.

THE CULTURAL and educational attainments of Grandma Kidd were, perhaps, superior to those of her husband, she being of a more refined and gentle nature and possessing qualities characteristic of those born and reared in the homes of affluence and ease. The language used by her large family of boys and girls, and their general demeanor, were proof of home training and influence above the average.

WHILE Grandpa Kidd may have been somewhat lacking in polish and literary attainments, he was an energetic man of business, honest and upright in all his dealings, and courageous in defending the rights of the weak and helpless.

HE HAD a love for knowledge and improvement, and, with some neighbors, always secured the best teachers for their neighborhood schools. (May I remind you that, at that time, there was only one college for girls in the U.S.A.—the Wesleyan, Macon, Ga.?) One of these teachers—my mother's last one—was Rev. Robert Dickerson, father of Rev. Walter Dickerson, a greatly beloved preacher of the Alabama Conference.

IN HIS home, Grandpa was affectionate and jovial; he was not only loved by his children, but respected and obeyed, as was Grandma, also. Both being hard workers, their children were taught to take part in the daily routine of duties, the lighter tasks, then the heavier ones. By example and precept they learned that to work was not a disgrace, but an honor, and all through life, even in old age, the members of that large family have been noted for their activities.

BOTH WERE earnest Christians he being a leader in all church affairs, and she, doubtless, doing all that women, in those days, were expected to do. In a recent letter from my aunt, Mrs. Sallie Kidd Fair, their seventh daughter, she said "He (her father) was a regular attendant and leader in all religious services, day or night; nothing except sickness, kept him away. He always held family praper night and morning . . . Your mother told me a lot about his dedicating one room at the Jackson place, for Sunday School and other services, Sunday afternoons, for those who had no way of going to church. I was too small to remember much about it."

PREACHERS were warmly welcomed in their home, thus giving their children the privilege of associating with the best people and of listening to their words of wisdom, and enjoying their innocent jokes and recital of amusing as well as profitable experiences.

GRANDPA Kidd was a great temperance worker. He organized the first temperance society in this section, and he and all his family, who were old enough, worked to get people sign the pledge. Mother told of his persistent work with a confirmed drunkard, who refused, for some time, to sign the pledge, because he knew he would not be able to keep it when tempted. But Grandpa assured him he would stand by him and help him. Finally he signed, and a number of times he yielded to the temptations presented by old friends and became drunk. Grandpa, true to his word, stood by him, encouraging and helping him to win the victory and to become a good, useful citizen.

LEST THE above encomium, written by an ardent admirer of her ancestors, and a lover of relatives of the present day, even distant cousins, be considered exaggerated, the following testimonials are given:—

TALKING recently with Mrs. Ellen Birmingham, a contemporary of the younger Kidd girls, I said: "Let me read to you what I have written about Grandpa and Grandma Kidd. I want to know if you think I have overdrawn their good qualities." She replied: "I don't think you could say anything too good about them."

IN FEBRUARY, 1904, while on an itinerary of visit in interest of the cause of missions, I was in Birmingham, Ala., in the home of Mrs. Gregory, widow of a beloved preacher of the Nroth Alabama Conference. Miss Lillian, her daughter, had invited Dr. and Mrs. Anson West to tea. He had known my Kidd grandparents and their large family in 1860, and when he learned who my people were, he said: "I feel like shaking hands with you again. Your grandfather was the salt of the earth." I went to him and we had a hearty hand-shake.

NOT LONG before his death, Dr. H. T. Lett repeated to some friends what he had said to others on different occasions, regarding his associations, in early life, with the Kidd family. He said in substance: "The cleanliness and order everywhere, the Christian atmosphere of the home, the unselfish, affectionate demeanor of its members, one for the other, and their attention to him, a mere boy, made a lasting impression on his youthful mind, and that from that day on, he had always found the Kidd women unexcelled. One of the girls gave him a book which he prized highly." Thus we see, even in that day when books were not so plentiful as today, they were lovers of literature and took pleasure in sharing with others what they themselves enjoyed.

IN THE Kidd family there were nine girls and two boys, all professing Christians and assiduols attendants at all church services. They were not interested in wordly amusements. The dance hall and card table had no attractions for them. I think I can safely say that most of them, if not all, would have considered a rattlesnake in their midst less harmful than a deck of cards.

THE WOMEN especially were noted for their attention to the poor and suffering, liberally giving to them of their time and means. Special mention should be made of dear Aunt Mattie Hightower, who often spent, not just one or two days and nights with the sick, but a week and more, never making charges and receiving little for their services. While we justly praise her, we must not forget Cousin Jimmie, her daughter, who self-sacrificingly, made it possible for her mother to leave home on her missions of love and mercy.

FROM THE above sketch of the Kidd-Carlton Family, it is evident that we, their children and grandchildren, have fallen into a rich inheritance. What are we doing with it? Are we using it to advantage or are we squandering it? They served God, taking as their guide His Word which they read systematically, beginning with Genesis and going on through Revelations. They taught their children to do the same. They encouraged them in memorizing whole chapters, a task that was not irksome to the latter, but gave them pleasure. Herein do we find the secret of their success in life.

ELIZABETH CARLTON KIDD

Elizabeth Carlton Kidd was born near Wetumpka, Ala., March 4, 1837. She received her education in the schools of the communities where her parents lived, now Good Hope and Eclectic.

On Feb. 14, 1861, she was married to Thomas Dixon Smith.

In 1865, Mr. and Mrs. Smith moved to Meridian, Miss., making that their home till April, 1868. They then embarked from New Orleans to find a home in Brazil, S. A. Their first home was in the Norris neighborhood, near the present town of Villa Americana, Province of Sao Paulo. They were charter members of the first Methodist church organized in that Province, for the Americans. This organization was effected in 1871, in the Campo neighborhood. They were also charter members, as were their two eldest children, of the first Methodist Church for Brazillians in this section.

In 1884, Mr. Smith and family returned to Elmore County, from Brazil, where they had been for 16 years. Here he died Jan. 1, 1895. In 1898, Mrs. Smith moved to Texas, making her home either with her daughter, Laura, or her son, Marvin, until the death of Mrs. Macon, Sept. 17, 1933. Then she returned to Eclectic, Ala., where she spent the remainder of her days. She died Aug. 5, 1935, aged 98 years, 5 mos., 1 day.

To Mr. and Mrs. Smith were born five children, Leonora Dixon, Aug. 25, 1862; Laura Adela, July 6, 1865; George Kidd, Sept. 10, 1868; Mary Meriweather, Nov. 10, 1870; and Eastham Marvin, June 14, 1878.

Leonora studied in the Girl's Annex of Collegio Internacional, a Presbyterian institution in Campinas, and Collegio Piracicabano, in Piracicaba, Brazil. Her first year in the U. S. A. was spent in The Nashville College for Young Ladies, Nashville, Tenn. Dr. John Massey, learning of her desire to prepare for missionary work, kindly opened for her the doors of the Ala. Conference Female College, Tuskegee, Ala. Here she completed the classical course in 1887. In after years she took the Bible course in Scarritt College, Kansas City. In 1888, she was employed by the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions of the M. E. Church South, and sent to Brazil. At the close of the first year, she was accepted as a full missionary. In 1908, she severed her connection with the Woman's Board and, a few months later, was married to Robert Meriwether. In 1926, she and her husband returned to the U. S. A. to make their home in Eclectic, Alabama. Mr. Meriwether died November 6, 1937.

Laura was educated in private schools, having talent for music, and taught in local schools of Elmore County. On January 1, 1889, she was married to Henry Macon. In December of 1896, they with their two little boys, moved to Comanche County, Texas, where they remained till 1909, moving then to Quitman, Texas. Here, Mrs. Macon died Sept 17, 1933. She was a leader in church work, an active member of the Eastern Star Order, and a ready co-worker in every community enterprise.

Their children were Kidd Lafayette, Hunter Smith, Eloise, and Gladys.

Kidd and Hunter were born in Elmore Co., Ala., the first, on August 14, 1891, and the latter, February 15, 1893.

After finishing the high school course, Kidd took the state examination for teachers and taught two years. He also took several correspondence courses. Early in life he accepted a position in one of the Comanche banks and since that time he has been connected with one of the local banks. In 1917, Kidd Macon was married to Miss Buna Hitchcock, a young teacher, only daughter of Rev. M. M. Hitchcock.

Hunter Macon was educated in the high schools of Hasse and Quitman, Texas. At present he is chief clerk, freight claim department, Missouri Pacific Lines. He and Miss Vernon Smart, of Quitman, Texas, were married May 9, 1915. She was educated in the Kidd-Key College, Sherman, Texas, receiving her B. L. degree in 1914. Their only child, Naomi Ruth, was born April 8, 1920.

Eloise was born March 10, 1903, near Comanche, Texas. She was educated in Kidd-Key College and Conservatory of Music, Sherman, Texas, majoring in piano. She was married September 3, 1924, to Leonard M. Fulkerson, of Sulphur Springs, Texas.

Gladys was born January 25, 1905, in Hasse, Texas. She received her education in Kidd-Key College and Conservatory of Music, Sherman, Texas, majoring in music. On May 3, 1928, she married Roy Power, of Quitman, Texas. His trade is that of tailor. She teaches music and is now employed in the public schools of Quitman. They have one child, Paul Davis, born July 20, 1931.

George Kidd died May 9, 1889.

Mary Meriwether, at an early age, entered Collegio Piracicabano, Piracicaba, and later, was a boarding pupil in Collegio Pro-ents to the U. S. A. She studied in the Eclectic School, and afterwards taught in Elmore County four years. She then entered the Alabama Conference Female College, Tuskegee, Ala., where she took the classical course, serving, at the same time, as Dr. Massey's secretary. One year she was a student in the Methodist Training School, Nashville, Tenn. She received her A. B. degree from Huntingdon College, Montgomery, Ala., June, 1935. Her address is 307 Winona Ave., Montgomery, Ala. She was a teacher in the Capitol Heights Grammar School, Montgomery, but now retired and is coaching pupils.

Eastham Marvin Smith attended the Eclectic and Newman Schools of Elmore County. Then in 1901 took his D. D. S. degree from the Dental College of Atlanta. He moved to Texas. He married Miss Donna Caton, educated in the Normal School of Texas. Their children are Agnes Ruth, Elizabeth Janette, and Johnnie Doris.

Agnes Ruth was born August 4, 1909. Educated in Clarksville School. Married the night of her graduation to Weldon Latimer, a clerk in the Clarksville Bank. Their children are Billy Eugene, born December 25, 1928; Robert Marvin, December 15, 1931, and died April 13, 1932; Shirley Ann, April 21, 1933, and died January

Jacksonville, March 1, 1941—R. H. Fair, 93, father of R. W. Fair of Tyler and the last Cherokee County Civil War veteran, died in a Jacksonville hospital Saturday at 8 a.m. after an illness of several months. Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Jacksonville Methodist Church. The Rev. Stewart Clendin, pastor, and the Rev. C. E. Peeples, president of Lon Morris College will conduct the service. Burial will be in City Cemetery.

A native of Alabama, Fair served in a company from his state during the Civil War. After the war he came to Texas and engaged in farming and nursery business near Arp for many years. Mr. and Mrs. Fair observed their seventy-first wedding anniversary in November of last year. Fair moved to Jacksonville about 23 years ago. He was active in Methodist Church work until his age caused his retirement.

Survivors are his widow, who was 93 years old Saturday; two sons, R. W. Fair of Tyler and C. L. Fair of Jacksonville; five daughters, Mrs. S. W. Ray and Mrs. T. L. Ray of Jacksonville, Mrs. E. L. Ray and Mrs. H. M. Arthur of Shreveport, La., and Mrs. Wilson Arnold of Troup; 20 grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

Pallbearers are Knox Ray, Richard Ray, Robert Ray, Herbert Fair, James Fair, Wilton Fair, McCauley Arthur, and Gus Arnold, all grandsons, and Joe Henry Baker, great grandson.

Williamson Holmes Funeral Church is in charge of funeral arrangements.

FEATURES OF MENTION

Miss Mary Smith was recently granted an A. B. Degree from Huntingdon College in recognition of her scholarship and long service as teacher.

Kid Williams was given a trip for himself and wife to the World's Fair in recognition of his service as an employee of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

A. C. Rodgers was a lay member of the Methodist Protestant Church and was a member of the Board of Church Extention and secretary and treasurer of that board. He was also a member of the Board of Samaritans and the treasurer of that board. He was elected a delegate to the uniting conference of all Methodism at Kansas City and likewise a delegate to the general conference of Southeastern Jurisdictional Conference, receiving the highest vote of all laymen. He has been elected to the Board of Church Extension of the Alabama Conference and was made treasurer of that board.

Miss Mary Arthur, the daughter of Mrs. Vane (Fair) Arthur, was given a one-fourth page picture in the Shreveport Times for her activities and prominence in Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority of Centenary College.

Notably among accomplishments and honors is the election of Miss Blanche Bachelor of Atmore, Ala., to the presidency of the 4-H Club of the State and awarded a trip to Washington, D. C. in June 1941.

Her picture appears in the Arcidian Growers Journal, widely circulated nitrate advertising. The note accompanying the picture is as follows:

CHARM AND ACHIEVEMENT

Introducing MISS BLANCHE BACHELOR, a senior II at Atmore, Escambia County, and active 4-H Clubster. And a very accomplished young lady she is!

At the short course at Auburn last year, she was selected as president of the State 4-H Club Council. The first time she went to Auburn she paid her way by milking all Summer. But NEXT SUMMER, she will attend the National 4-H Club Conference at Washington, D. C., with all her expenses paid!

She is the great granddaughter of Lucy Kidd Williams and granddaughter of Lula Williams Wideman.

Her grandmother herself is a teacher at 64 and recently took a short course at the State University.

Louise Rodgers, granddaughter of Susie Kidd Pearson and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers, was the first to get a Bachelor of Music degree from the State University of Alabama.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Fair, the wife, our Aunt Sallie Kidd, celebrated their 71st marriage anniversary Nov. 14 of this year. They are both in excellent health, with no physical defects except that Aunt Sallie is slightly deaf.

One interesting feature in their family life is that three of his daughters married three sons of a neighbor named Ray. His son Walter is an independent oil operator besides having a large peach orchard interest and originated the Fair Peach, which is well known.—From a Jacksonville paper.

Following is a letter to Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Fair, Jacksonville, Texas, from Brady P. Gentry, County Judge at Tyler, Texas:

March 16th, 1937

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Fair,
Jacksonville, Texas.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Fair:

I have just read an article in this morning's Tyler paper concerning you. I want to congratulate you on the long and useful life you have enjoyed.

My own father is eighty-five years of age and I know something from him of the way a person looks at things in the twilight of life.

You are to be congratulated not only in your personal contribution to good citizenship but in the fine children you reared. I am sure that should Tyler select its most highly regarded and useful citizen, Walter Fair would receive that distinction. We have no better man.

I want to wish you many more years of good health and happiness. Since you came from Alabama, as did all my people, including my father, and belong to the best (Methodist) church, I believe the good Lord will grant my wish.

With best regards always to both of you I am,

Yours very truly,
BRADY P. GENTRY.

SEABORN CARLTON joined the Eighth Alabama Infantry Winston's Regiment, subsequently Webster's; was wounded at the famous battle of Gettysburg and twice captured during the war. When he started for the scene of conflict in 1861, his sorrowing mother gave him a two and a half dollar gold piece; which he retained to the hour of his death.

Uncle Robert Fair, who died March 1, 1941, was 93 years of age. He fought in the Confederate Army and his picture was given front page space in the Jacksonville Daily with a column write-up of his long and useful life in the city.
